

Physics and Astronomy Open House

October 31, 2009

The Departments of Physics and Astronomy at Indiana University warmly welcome you to their annual Open House on the Indiana University campus, Saturday, October 31, from 9:00 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. at Swain West, 737 East Third St. Physicists and astronomers have created an exciting day of fun hands-on indoor and outdoor learning activities, including the Exploratorium, the spectacular Phreaky Physics lecture demonstration show, and fascinating lectures on Hubble's Bounty and Planning for the H1N1 flu: how physics and computers help fight off global pandemics. There will be guided tours of the IU Cyclotron Facility and the Midwest Proton Radiotherapy Institute based there (for ages 13 and older), as well tours of nearby Kirkwood Observatory and the solar observatory given by IU astronomers. The event is free and includes refreshments. You can get more information about the Open House by contacting Susan Brown at (812) 855-1246 or by visiting

www.physics.indiana.edu and clicking on the Outreach link
See you there!